Research Activities:

While respecting the post-holder’s freedom to choose research areas, it is hoped that they will be able to develop high-level scientific research activities in the field of taxation oriented towards the economic world of small companies and the non-market sector, from an interdisciplinary point of view, in collaboration with the Tax Institute, whatever the research unit chosen by the candidate.

As an example of the field of research, the following themes could be part of the research programme:

- Specificities and evolution of the tax treatment of the income of small companies, as well as the tax treatment of the income of companies/independent professionals and natural persons;
- Specificities and evolution of the tax treatment of the income of political communities, legal entities under public law and, more generally, of the non-market private sector.

This research should be reflected in publications (both in journals and in the form of monographs) and active participation in conferences and seminars.

The applicant will be expected to develop partnerships with researchers from other institutions and to be part of national and international research networks.

The applicant will be expected to develop an agenda to ensure the coherence of the research they intend to carry out.

The candidate must integrate into the collective research dynamic, in particular through active participation in the activities of the chosen research unit.

The applicant will endeavour to raise funds from both internal and external donors to finance their research or that of members of their team.

The candidate will eventually be required to supervise doctoral research in subjects related to their expertise.

Services to the Community:
The post-holder will join the Department of Law in the Faculty of Law, Political Science and Criminology. They will contribute to the life of the Faculty and participate in the various activities and missions linked to their membership of the academic body of the department, the Faculty and the University of Liège.

Services to the community include, in particular, active contribution to the supervision of the dissertations for the Master’s in Law, the advanced Master’s in Tax Law and, where applicable, the advanced Master’s in Notarial Studies.
